Military Spectacle Witnessed by Hundreds of People from this and Adjoining Counties. Governor
Stuart Reviews Troops.

The spectacle, which was witnessed by hundreds of people from Outlets to the city, drew a throng of onlookers to the state, started promptly at half past four and continued for almost two hours. The Executive appeared before headquarters at the hour scheduled for the review to start and made a momentary speech to the crowd. A band of 100 men in the Red Ball parade of 38 years continuous service was presented to the men and then, accompanied by his staff, and Major General Bowman and staff, the ride down the two long lines of khaki clad troops was commenced.

The usual ceremony of uncovering was observed as the flag passed not only by the Governor and his staff but by the majority of spectators.

The representatives of the city families were guests at the Governor's tent during the review.

The crowd which witnessed Wednesday's review is said to have been considerably smaller than in other years.

The Fourteenth regiment was the only regiment in line wearing the ferences between them, which would permit to different uses in an entirely different way. One admires the big bodied, generous yielding Holsteins. They want a lot of milk and is not so particular about the taste of butter fat. They are the main source of points of excellence about Holsteins. They have no added troubles, are hardy and vigorous, hearty eaters and splendid producers. By selecting only those showing the better percentage of fat a profitable herd can be had. For those who do not demand an exceptionally large flow of milk, looking rather to richness of the product and is low cost, the Jersey cow certainly cannot be excused. That the Jersey is really more susceptible to disease or is more rugged than any other cow there is no proof.

The following details might be improved by giving them larger titles. These points are matters lying almost wholly within the selection of animals. Any breeder can improve the udders on his herd in a single generation by distributing the best milkers as mothers to the future, to preserve, Jersey breeders at first raising in our own herd have shown widely differing concern in this respect, varying from udders the size of a two quart pail to those measuring nearly three gallons.

We have good evidence that Jerseys with good solid teats from the back.

The Guernsey cow we have had an opportunity of studying at close range recently. We have had them standing side by side with Jerseys in the stable. As they were being milked one of the Jersey cows uttered a plaintive cry which she repeated continually.

1000s of programs, a pure bred Holstein, owned by the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station, it was produced 14,000 pounds of milk.

Since there are any number of cows possessing that type which have proved excellent performers, I call them the excellent cows, because of the millions of a high quality of milk and a breed which a man will make no mistake in selecting.

The Swiss have had a place in the dairy ranks; also the Ayrshires.

My advice to any one beginning a dairy herd would be this: if the object is quantity of milk and medium

Two years ago the agricultural engineering section of the Iowa experiment station invented a new kind of silage machine. It is called the "Silage King." This silo is built of specially made hollow tile. It is as permanent as a cement silo and much easier to erect. It costs no more than the best grade of stave silo and will last as long. The silage made in this machine is first class. The first 100,000 silage machines constructed in various parts of the state

Weighing and Testing Milk.
This is the only safe way to determine the difference in value between the good and inferior cow. Weighing and testing daily is only a business proposition. It is the only safe way of determining what price to ask for milk in selling her or what to pay for her when buying. No intelligent farmer will sell a cow for $30 that will make him a net profit of $40 or $50 a year. Neither will he keep a cow that doesn't pay him a profit; if he knows that and weigh the milk is the way to know.

Madison, Pa., June 26.—Mrs. Sedna Weiss, discovered by neighbor of William C. Campbell.

The bodies of Dr. Russell Campbell and Mrs. M. Sedna Weiss were found in the home of the mortician in New Madison, Pa., on Monday morning. Dr. Campbell was discovered by the woman lying across the front door, and further search revealed the bodies of the four other persons.

A heavy examination showed that the bodies had died from internal causes, resulting from an operation. The theory of the doctor was that he had performed the operation some time ago, and the bodies had died from the operation. The bodies were found in the house of the mortician, and the bodies were found in the house of the mortician.
